Dr. Cassy Wang

Dr. Alka Sood

Dr. Kirillos Mikail

Dr. Cassy Shitong Wang has been with the Dr. O.K. Medical Centre since August 2019 and is now accepting new patients. She is interested in getting to know her patients and developing an individual road map to health for each of them. She is open-minded and welcomes patient-centered discussions. "I tailor the care to the person according to his or her core values and social context," she says. Dr. Wang practices comprehensive family medicine and has expertise in acute as well as chronic conditions, caring for patients of all ages, and preventative health care. She seeks to treat each of her patients in a holistic manner.

Dr. Wang aims to empower people with the tools and knowledge necessary to take charge of their own health. In addition to comprehensive family medicine, Dr. Wang is particularly interested in women's health, pediatrics, and caring for recent immigrants. Dr. Wang understands that culture can deeply influence one's perception and interpretation of health. She is committed to provide culturally sensitive medical care to all her patients. She also has a secondary degree in Global Health and Health Policy from Harvard University. Having lived in Quebec, Ontario, the United States and Asia, she is well positioned to use her multicultural background and her multilingual skills to serve the diverse population of Etobicoke and beyond.

Dr. Wang is a College of Family Physicians Canada certified Family Medicine Specialist. She is experienced in community primary care both in the city of Toronto and rural Ontario. She has also worked as an emergency physician at the South Bruce Grey Health Center.

She completed her Family Medicine residency at the University of Toronto, her Doctor of Medicine degree at McGill University, and her undergraduate degree at Harvard University. She is fluent in English, French, and Mandarin Chinese.

Dr. Alka Sood started at the Dr. O.K. Medical Centre in summer 2020 and is now accepting new patients. Dr. Sood is fluent in English, Hindi and Punjabi.

"I love working with a patient, developing a relationship and helping them optimize their own health," Dr. Sood says. She also believes "prevention is better than a cure." when it comes to her patients. This means she is committed to helping patients take precautions and address issues early, rather than waiting until issues escalate.

Dr. Sood began her medical journey studying kinesiology at McMaster University. After graduating from her undergraduate degree and working in the field for a year, her goal to go to medical school was reaffirmed. "I decided I wanted to work in a more comprehensive area where she could help patients optimize health," she says.

Dr. Sood obtained her medical degree from University College Dublin. She then trained in Singapore for a year. After completing her Family Medicine residency at Pennsylvania State University, Dr. Sood returned to Canada to study Women's Health for 8 months at Queens University. "My goal was always to come back home and be close to family," Dr. Sood says.

The Women's Health program at Queens was fluid and gave her the ability to see many women's health scenarios. "It was a really wide and varied experience... I wanted to expose myself to a wide spectrum of issues that were pertaining to women and would help me expand my repertoire of counselling I could provide," Dr. Sood says.

Her work experience has taken her to four different countries, on three different continents. As a result, Dr. Sood feels she has a unique perspective on patient care. "When you can understand where a patient is coming from, I think you are better able to tailor a management plan that suits them," she says.

Dr. Sood is ready and enthusiastic to start her practice and serve the population of Etobicoke!

Dr. Kirillos Mikail is a recent addition to the Dr. O.K. Medical Centre team and is now accepting new patients.

Dr. Mikail has been practicing medicine for 10 years and considers collaboration between himself and his patients an important component of his medical practice. "I like patients to be involved in their care," he says, adding "I'm there to direct and help them reach their focus."

From a young age, Dr. Mikail was interested in medicine. As a result, he received a lot of exposure to medicine through volunteering, working at different clinics and on medical missionary trips. Early on in his career, Dr. Mikail was able to explore how physicians and healthcare providers were able to take care of their individual patients' needs.

Studying in Egypt, Dr. Mikail received his medical degree from Cairo University. He also completed his family medicine training there, before returning to Canada to complete his post-grad medical training at Memorial University. He is fluent in English and Arabic.

In addition to schooling, medical missionary trips have taken Dr. Mikail across the world. He has travelled to Bolivia, India, Sri Lanka, Dubai, Thailand, Bolivia, and each place taught him different things.

During his time as a medical missionary he learned to be humble, and anyone can be vulnerable and need medical help no matter what age or class you are in.

Dr. Mikail also spent a vital 5 years in emergency medicine, which he considers a strong focus of his. He has a wide range of medical interests including: emergency and family medicine, pediatrics, fertility health, mental health, women's and men's health, weight management and sports medicine.

Dr. Mikail thoroughly enjoys getting to know his patients, understanding their experiences and the affect is has on their health, as well as personally connecting with them.

"I want patients to be as happy and as healthy as possible," Dr. Mikail insists, adding he is happy to help patients with any concerns they might have. "Seeing my patients health improve brings me the most joy as a doctor."

Dr. Mikail is happy to start his practice in Etobicoke and looks forward to helping new patients.
